Working draft. Not an offer of securities.

Confidential

1. The ask, sized to the stage

The honest next check is a small pre-seed to prove one live line, not a growth round. A $25,000 instrument would fund vendor balances, one number, Stripe setup, and ninety days of staging. No valuation is stated. No round is open.

2. What an investor would be buying into

- A managed answering line for local service businesses, priced at $19 a month and $0.35 a started minute.
- A control plane that will not claim a booking the customer system did not confirm.
- A rate that keeps about 75 percent gross on the minute before card fees, at today's vendor prices.

3. What an investor is not buying

- Revenue. None is recorded.
- A live phone number. The ledger has no staging call.
- A merged production branch. Pull request 2 is open.
- Exclusive rights to OpenAI, Twilio, or xAI. Those are vendors.

4. Use of a $25,000 check

Use	Amount	Done when
Speech and carrier balances	$8,000	A real call is in the ledger
Number, Stripe, and webhook	$2,000	$0.35 price exists and bills a test
Ninety days of hosting and fixes	$10,000	Health is no longer degraded
Reserve	$5,000	Untouched unless a vendor bill spikes

Amounts are an allocation, not spent money.

5. Illustration, not a forecast

Ten lines at $19, each using 200 included minutes and 200 more at $0.35, would bill $1,090 in a month before tax and card fees. Vendor cost on 4,000 minutes is about $354. That illustration assumes the line is live and the accounts exist. They do not.

6. Diligence pack

- 1 Business plan, this set, file 01.
- 2 Architecture and code register, this set, file 02.
- 3 Repository pull request 2.
- 4 A later add: the first ledger row, when a call exists.
